

Dear Senator,

As you are probably aware, genetically engineered (GE) foods are flooding our farms and grocery stores. I know that the FDA believes GE foods are safe. I feel, however, that there are enough scientists and physicians all over the world, including some of the FDA's own staff scientists, warning of serious health and environmental risks from these foods that I would like to reserve the right to decide for myself whether I will eat GE foods and feed my family with these foods—or not. Senators Barbara Boxer and Daniel Moynihan have introduced two bills into the Senate for labeling (S 2080) and safety testing (S 2315) of GE foods. As one of your constituents, I am writing to you now to ask you to help sponsor these bills in the Senate.

For more information about GE foods, I suggest that you contact Mothers for Natural Law at 1-800-REAL-FOOD, ask them to send you a copy of their educational publication: Safe Food News, and visit their web site at www.safe-food.org.

I look forward to hearing that you will champion my rights in Congress. Thank you for your time and attention.
